

COCOA SENT HOME WITH SAD STORY OF BIG DISASTER

Surrender Before Last Phase of Battle Is Completed

Aside from the high dive made by Mr. Rogers to catch Mr. Robinson's foul in the fourth the fans found little diversion in yesterday's clatter of hits and streaking of runs across the pan, and gazed with gaping enui at the 18-1 score. After the performance the Potato King consigned the entire lot to Cocoa "in bag order."

Nearly always some one incident is thrust into local ball games to break the drumfire of the Brookville bats, but the one staged by Mr. Rogers yesterday was something new, and it was not until after the struggle that his high dive was explained. Our informant passed it along that Mr. Rogers was terrible after fowls, and went after Mr. Robinson's foul before he found it was of the wrong gender. Anyway, he stirred up considerable territory around third base and soiled his new shave.

The Pals took the opportunity of engaging in target practice. Mr. Callahan, reputed to be a great turkey hunter, won the barrel of flour and Mr. Wynne took second prize, a handsome box of pills. In the practice Wednesday Mr. Peters won the overalls, so the only thing left for Mr. Quinn, who shot wide, is some fancy lingerie. He'll have stiff competition as Senor Larzo also aspires to the lingerie.

The Pals scored at will, and the only time a coconut rolled across was in the second when Senor Valdez passed Miner Jones, Bamberg sacrificed him to second, and weakfish singles by King and Hedley rolled him over. The manifest:

Take All But Cabin.

A very curious propensity of the wolverine is its habit of stealing and carrying away articles which can be of no possible use to it, says the American Forestry Magazine. An instance is recorded where these animals removed and concealed the whole paraphernalia of an unoccupied hunter's lodge, including such articles as guns, axes, knives, cooking vessels and blankets.

Experienced hunters and trappers claim that a big wolverine may weigh as much as 60 pounds, but that 50 pounds is the more usual weight. They are very tenacious of life and instances are on record when the animal has been shot through and through the chest and not succumbed to the wound. In such cases, of course, the heart is not penetrated.

Do What You Can.

It is the greatest of all mistakes, to do nothing because you can only do little, but there are men who are always clamoring for immediate and stupendous effects, and think that virtue and knowledge are to be increased as a tower or temple are to be increased, where the growth of its magnitude can be measured from day to day, and you cannot approach it without perceiving a fresh pillar, or admiring an added pinnacle.—Sydney Smith.

"Oh, That's Different."

Heleen—I didn't tell her. I just asked her if she knew.

GIRLS CLOSE EYES IN MOVIES

Were Determined for Once to See a Picture From Its Beginning to Its End.

The last scenes of a film drama were flickering to their inevitable denouement. The fight between the hero and the villain was over, the chasing of automobiles had been so far exhausted that there was hardly a character who hadn't chased or been chased by every other character.

Suddenly a woman in the audience noticed two nice girls near her whose eyes were peacefully closed. Her heart went out to them in sympathy, for she assumed that they were blind and that they went to the movies just to hear the professor punch the piano, although that seemed too awful to be true.

But when the picture ended and the lights flashed on, the two girls opened four perfectly good eyes, looked at each other and smiled.
"Did you really keep your eyes shut?" demanded one. "Honestly to goodness I did—but did you?" answered the other.

"Cross my heart and hope to die," averred the first, "but it took a lot of self-control. However, I was determined for once to see a picture from the beginning instead of from the middle."—New York Sun.

Dweller in a Cave.

Cave bears were great big beasts, weighing half a ton or more. They lived in Europe during paleolithic times, and were contemporaneous with our ancestors. They get their name from the fact that their bones are usually found in caves. All bears, as a matter of fact, prefer a den in some rocky hole to live and die in.

Cave bears are all extinct now, but their near relatives, the Siberian brown bear and the Alaskan Kodiak bear, are alive. Scientists were at a loss as to where to place these huge beasts until they discovered Pleistocene affinities for them. Although a cave bear stood as big as a small cow, he was relatively inoffensive. He preferred rooting in the ground or robbing an occasional bee tree to preying on animals and men.

New Musical Instruments.

It has been said by musicians that the violin family is composed of two pygmies—the violin and the viola—and two giants—the violoncello and the double bass. It is reasonable to suppose that the great gap between these two extremes could be advantageously diminished. It is not surprising, then, that two well-known French musicians, father and son, have, after years of study and experimentation, created a number of intermediary instruments which have entirely changed the nature of the violin family.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

PAL MANAGEMENT TRYING TO FRAME A 4-CLUB CIRCUIT

Would Arrange Games in August and September on Schedules

Manager Boaz, of the Pals, has written to the management of the Ocala, Gainesville and Lake City clubs suggesting the arrangement of an inter-city schedule to take up the full time of August and September, each club having twelve games with the other club, thirty-six in all. The plans call for a regular standing as among the teams and the state amateur championship.

Such a plan, Manager Boaz believes would arouse such interest that it would prove sufficient drawing power to make the clubs self supporting. No definite plan of controlling the salary limit has yet been suggested, but it is felt that unless there is some stipulation that the plan would go on the rocks, as so many other similar ones have, when each club began bidding higher and higher for players. A good proposition would be that no club would be allowed to add to its roster after August 1 without the consent of all three of the other clubs. Salary limits could not be enforced as, without organization under the national agreement, there would be no way to secure correct information, and even then it is a hard proposition.

All of the games that the Pals have scheduled for August are with these three clubs with one exception, Winter Garden, and Manager Boaz has already cancelled this one. Nothing is known of the Winter Garden club and the experience has been that unheralded clubs usually prove uninteresting locally.

SUPERBAS CLIMB TOWARDS TOP IN NATIONAL FIGHT

(By Associated Press)

New York, June 23.—Robinson's climbing Superbas with their pitching ace, Dutch Ruether, squeezed a 3-2 victory from the league-leading Giants. It was Ruether's twelfth victory of the season. The lowly Phillies bested the Braves, 5-4, and the Pirates, hitting heavily, trimmed the Cubs, 8-3. The Cards and Reds had an off day.

Cobb's Tigers took an eleven-inning battle from the leading Browns, 3-2, while the Yankees were defeated by the Red Sox, 6-2. The Bostonians found the youthful Hoyt's curves to their liking, while Jack Quinn, a former Yankee, allowed but
